

Mid Cap Value Equity

Overview

U.S. markets performed well in the third quarter, propelled by strong corporate profits and economic growth. The Russell Midcap® Value Index (RMV) saw the most significant gains in the Telecommunications Services, Health Care and Industrials sectors. In a reversal from the year's first half, large company stocks outpaced smaller ones and low volatility returned.

Portfolio Performance & Developments

After a difficult second quarter, Cooke & Bieler's Mid Cap Value portfolio generated a total return of 4.78% gross of fees (4.56% net of fees), outperforming the RMV's 3.30% return for the third quarter, with contributions from both stock selection and portfolio positioning.

Largest Contributors

Helen of Troy (HELE), a diversified consumer goods company with leading positions in various niche categories, was the largest contributor for the quarter. HELE had been unfairly penalized in the first half of the year following the publication of a poorly-researched short thesis that misunderstood the company's distribution channels, ignored its very attractive valuation, and discounted its significant balance sheet flexibility. The stock price has been steadily recovering since.

Steelcase Inc. (SCS), a leading manufacturer of office furniture and systems, was the second largest contributor. SCS delivered earnings results that were considerably above expectations, driven by an improving environment, better traction for the company's new offerings, and good expense leverage.

Ball Corp. (BLL), a provider of metal packaging for beverages, foods and household products, and of aerospace technologies and services to commercial and governmental customers, was the third largest contributor. BLL posted a good quarter and appears on track to meet internal targets set after acquiring Rexam in 2016. The company's best-in-class management has it well-positioned for years to come.

Largest Detractors

Whirlpool Corp. (WHR), a global manufacturer and marketer of home appliances with leading market positions in North America, Latin America, and Asia, was the largest detractor for the quarter. WHR is operating well for the most part but continues to struggle integrating its recently acquired European operations. While valuation is very compelling, we continue to hold current positions awaiting tangible operational improvement.

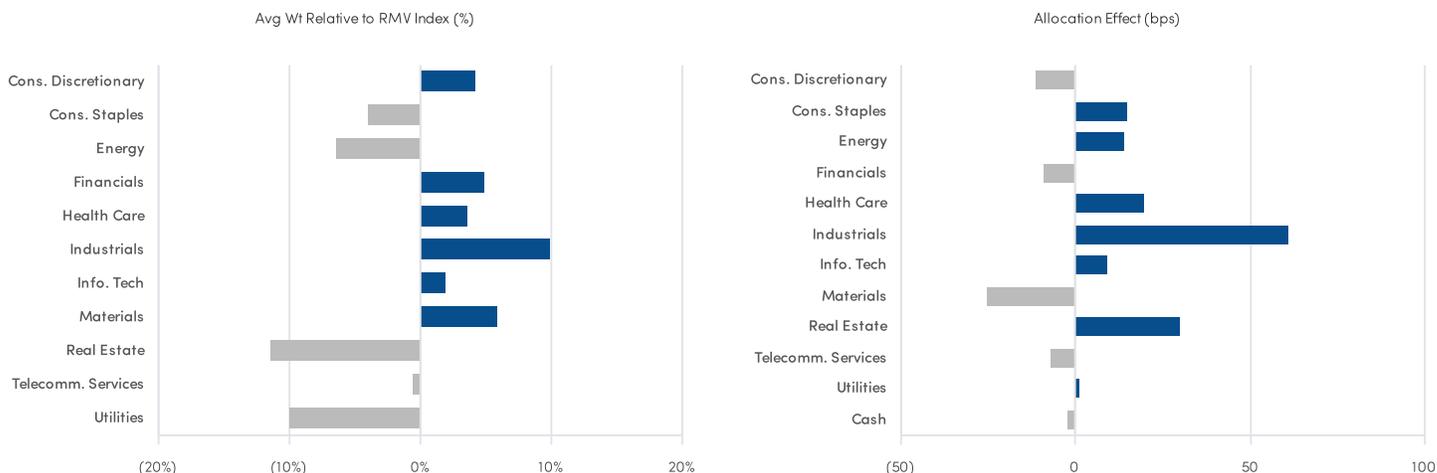

Schweitzer-Mauduit (SWM), a leading supplier to the tobacco products industry, was the second largest detractor. SWM reported encouraging fundamental earnings results but will incur higher interest expense as it refinanced some acquisition-related debt.

United Natural Foods (UNFI), the leading domestic distributor of natural, organic and specialty foods, and related products, was the third largest detractor. UNFI declined in response to disappointing earnings results and the poorly-received acquisition of SuperValu. We are evaluating the position in the context of the proposed transformational merger that creates a company with much greater scale and much less dependence on its largest customer, Whole Foods, but requires significant financial leverage.

In contrast to the second quarter, portfolio positioning was a tailwind in the third quarter as oil prices leveled off and the Energy sector trailed the Index, making the strategy's underweight here additive. More impactful, however, were the strategy's significant overweights in the Industrials and Health Care sectors and its underweight in Real Estate. In contrast, overweights in the Materials, Consumer Discretionary, and Financials sectors posed a relative performance drag.

Initiations

Arch Capital Group (ACGL) is a Bermuda-based specialty property & casualty (P&C) and mortgage insurer. Their niche approach to P&C underwriting and emphasis on risk management in mortgage insurance combined with their superior cycle management and appreciation for capital preservation – all engrained in their culture – have led to a long track record of above-average returns. Despite this track record, which we expect to continue, the stock trades at a discount to peers as investors seem to prefer insurers with less diverse business mixes.

Extended Stay America (STAY) is the largest owner and operator of extended stay hotels in the U.S. Their hotels provide an affordable alternative to traditional lodging – particularly for business travelers – featuring in-room kitchens and limited housekeeping services. The extended stay market is attractive on a long-term basis, and STAY has an opportunity to improve margins and returns by divesting less profitable properties and selectively building in markets with better economics. Valuation is compelling as some investors are disappointed management has not moved faster to formally separate its property ownership from its franchise functions. We think this is likely over time, and in the near-term believe STAY's portfolio transformation should create significant value for shareholders.

Eliminations

Penske Automotive Group (PAG) was eliminated as it reached fair value. We consider it to be a high-quality business with an extremely talented management team. The stock had been a solid performer over several years, but valuation is an important part of our discipline.

Outlook

As we enter the final quarter of 2018, we continue to see pockets of value in a market that as a whole has grown more exuberant. Consumer Staples, Utilities, and Energy in particular seem more than fairly valued, and the strategy remains underweight these areas. We find more compelling value in the Industrials, Consumer Discretionary, and, increasingly, in the Information Technology sectors. The economy appears to be growing robustly and corporate profits are benefiting from lower taxes, which should provide support for stock prices. However, after an extended period of extraordinary monetary stimulus, the Federal Reserve has been steadily moving toward a more neutral stance – raising rates seven times since December 2016. Rising interest rates will put pressure on companies and business models that have grown dependent on cheap financing and should slow the economy over time. The risks of a more significant crisis, while not high, are rising as well. Against this backdrop, the strategy continues to be positioned in conservatively financed, high-quality businesses.
